Supporting your customers to embrace digital transformation

KODAK ALARIS and Northamber can help your customers understand the changes they can make to their organisations to support their digital transformation goals easily and effectively. They can help your customers understand the full benefits of implementing technology into their daily processes.

Helping your customers save time, space and costs

By digitalising documents and automating processes, KODAK ALARIS and Northamber can help you benefit from physical space, more efficient processes and cost savings across multiple areas of your customers' organisation including archive storage fees, staff onboarding and enhance patient experience.

Instant patient access (present and archive)

Instant access to patient information (both past and present) can make the difference between good and exceptional patient experience. Swifter diagnosis can happen, patient history is immediately available and tests and follow up actions can be scheduled at the push of a button.

Automate manual processes

KODAK ALARIS and Northamber can help your customers increase efficiency, mitigate risk of errors and streamline your processes through seamless automation. By implementing extraction, classification and workflows into your organisation, information can get where it needs to go, in the format it's needed, almost instantly.

Remain compliant and protect your customers' patient information

Security is essential when it comes to patient information, and with the movement of data throughout organisations typically on paper, the risk of a security or compliance breach is high. When data is digitally captured, configured, validated and stored securely, your customers can remain compliant and ensure that patient information is only accessible to those who need it.

Meet sustainability objectives

The healthcare industry is the second largest paper-based consumer, and in a world where being sustainable is at the core focus of many organisations, it can be difficult to understand how to meet objectives whilst still needing to follow processes that are considered less sustainable. By incorporating digital transformation, technology and automated workflows into your customers organisation, reduce their paper consumption considerably and work with KODAK ALARIS and Northamber who shares the same values on sustainability with a commitment to ISO 14001:2015.
