

99 Bedrooms Project

A Collaborative Effort to Learn How Long Painting Takes

How long does it really take to paint a bedroom?

There is one factor that will likely never change in the painting industry: projects require people to prep surfaces and apply coatings (we're not quite ready for robots just yet).

With this in mind, it's important to understand the amount of time it takes people to paint, and here's why...

Not only is this information helpful for giving your team feedback, it also leads to better understanding of how to estimate and produce projects more effectively.

Let's find the answer, together

Although people have varying skill levels, there isn't a drastic difference from one person to another. We believe that with enough data (lots of it), we can solve the burning question of how much time on average does it take to paint different surfaces for repaint projects... once and for all.

In partnership with the PCA, we are forming a group of like-minded painting contractors who want to help answer this question by timing their painters and sharing their data.

Keep reading to learn why you won't want to miss this once in a lifetime opportunity!

Why should you get involved?

Besides the obvious (yes, helping the painting community), check out the other benefits you'll get by participating in this project!

Exclusive Access

We will combine all the data contributed and provide you with an exclusive sheet of time-based rates. This information is pure gold for estimating painting projects!

Produce Effectively

Learn how to build better estimates and work orders for your team so you can produce projects more effectively, and profitably. (cha-ching!)

Improved Development

Coach and train your painters based on numbers you can trust. This is an opportunity to stay accountable and make improvements to your business.

Innovative Community

Learn directly from painting industry leaders and build relationships with fellow painters through a private Facebook group.

Marketing Content:

Capture photos and videos throughout the process so you can build content for social media and marketing purposes. Now's the perfect time to get your before & after shots!

Get involved today!

With the winter season approaching, bedrooms are the perfect place to start timing your painters. Click the button below to sign up - we'll be hosting upcoming webinars to further explain the project details.

JOIN NOW!

